ROSEWOOD CORDEVILLE EARNS FOUR-STAR AWARD BY FORBES TRAVEL GUIDE IN THE 2020 STAR RATING LIST

Rosewood CordeValle honored among the world's best luxury hotels, restaurants and spas by one of the world's premier travel authorities

Rosewood CordeValle, the secluded Northern California resort, is pleased to announce that it has been named a Four-Star Hotel on the 2020 Forbes Travel Guide Star Rating list. Additionally, Sense, A Rosewood Spa at Rosewood CordeValle has been named a Four-Star Spa on the prestigious rating list. Based on the experiences of a highly qualified team of anonymous inspectors who assess nearly 1,700 entities against 900 objective industry standards, the world-renowned and only global rating system for luxury hotels, restaurants and spas, offers designations for Five-Star, Four-Star and Recommended properties.

“We are truly honored to be named a Four-Star property by Forbes Travel Guide for the third consecutive year,” said Luca Rutigliano, managing director of Rosewood CordeValle. “This rating confirms our commitment and dedication to making our guests’ stays as comfortable and elevated as possible.”

An oasis set amongst the foothills of Northern California’s Santa Cruz Mountains, Rosewood CordeValle is a serene oasis for guests. The sprawling property spans over 1,700 acres and includes an on-site winery and vineyard, signature Sense®, A Rosewood Spa, state-of-the-art meeting and conference rooms, three exquisite dining options and the award-winning Robert Trent Jones Jr. golf course, which stretches over 7,360 yards and offers 360-degree unobstructed mountain views.

The only independent, global rating system for luxury hotels, restaurants and spas, Forbes Travel Guide’s annual list has been revered as a global authority on travel since its launch in 1958. The winning properties, restaurants and spas are showcased on <https://www.forbestravelguide.com/>.
